JUDGMENT (Per Sri B.Prakash Rao, J)

Heard both sides and at their request, the main appeal itself is taken up for disposal.

The unsuccessful writ petitioners are the appellants herein who claim to be the employees of the private Management filed the writ petition seeking a direction to release the arrears of grant-in-aid with interest and other consequential benefits.

It is the case of the appellants that in the earlier occasion, the management persuaded the matter and went to the Supreme Court and a direction was also given. However, the same was not complied with. Hence the writ petition.

The learned single Judge after taking into consideration all the circumstances held that the remedy of the petitioners is elsewhere and not by filing the writ petition and therefore, dismissed the writ petition. Hence the appeal.

Having considered the submissions made and on perusal of record, it is seen that admittedly the appellants/writ petitioners are the employees and grant-in-aid is meant for the management. If there is any grievance, it is for the management to seek appropriate remedies. However, the appellants have no locus-standi much less any enforceable right in exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Therefore, the writ petition as has been framed and filed is not maintainable.

Therefore, the writ appeal is dismissed. No costs.
